Celebrating 25 Years

The Jewish Book Festival has been bringing distinguished authors to Rochester for 25 years, and we take great pride in knowing that we have introduced the community to a wide range of literary voices. The outstanding writers joining us this year will no doubt continue to inspire, move and educate audiences, as the festival has done since its inception.

MICHAEL CHABON
Moonglow: A Novel

A NEW YORK TIMES BESTSELLER

Michael Chabon, who won the 2001 Pulitzer Prize for Fiction with The Amazing Adventures of Kavalier & Clay, further cements his legacy with Moonglow, a novel of truth and lies, family legends, and existential adventure—and the forces that work to connect us and destroy us.

In 1989, fresh from the breakout success of his debut novel, The Mysteries of Pittsburgh, Chabon traveled to Oakland, California, to visit his dying grandfather. Tongue loosened by powerful painkillers, memory stirred by the imminence of death, Chabon’s grandfather shared recollections and told stories that the younger man had never heard, uncovering a long-buried and nearly forgotten history. That dreamlike week of revelations is the basis of Moonglow, Chabon’s latest feat of literary magic.

ASL Interpreter will be provided.

MARK SHULMAN

Tod Munn is a bully. He's tough, but times are even tougher. The wimps have stopped coughing up their lunch money. The administration is cracking down. Then to make things worse, Tod and his friends get busted doing something bad. Something really bad. Can a no-nonsense guidance counselor help Tod stop before he turns into a real bully?

A Rochester native – and former Camp Seneca Lake counselor – Shulman has written more than 150 books for children and teens. His novel Scrawl is included on the list of Best Fiction for Young Adults by the American Library Association.

TODD MOSS

The Shadow List

Scam e-mails that promise a windfall are not a laughing matter for Moss’s recurring protagonist, State Department crisis manager Judd Ryker. In fact, they represent a deadly part of one of the world’s biggest organized crime rackets. A young American disappears in London, sending Ryker into the heart of a Nigerian corruption scandal. Meanwhile, his CIA agent wife finds herself chasing a Russian master criminal. What they don’t know is that they are pulling opposite ends of the same lethal thread.

Moss, who hails from Rochester, is chief operating officer and senior fellow at the Center for Global Development, a Washington, D.C. think tank. He served with the George W. Bush administration as Deputy Assistant Secretary of State and chief U.S. diplomat for West Africa.

RONALD BALSON The Trust

In The Trust, the acclaimed author of Once We Were Brothers, Saving Sophie and Karolina’s Twins turns the spotlight on his fictional private eye, Liam Taggart, who returns to Northern Ireland for his uncle’s funeral. There, he learns that his uncle was shot to death and had apparently anticipated his own murder. Further, Uncle Fergus has placed his estate in a secret trust, directing that no distributions be made until the killer is found. Like Balson, a trial attorney, Liam is soon on the case.

JULIA DAHL Conviction

A year after the Brooklyn riots between black and Jewish residents, a black family is brutally murdered at home. A teenager is quickly convicted, and the justice system moves on. Twenty-two years later, tabloid journalist Rebekah Roberts, the heroine of Dahl’s first two books, gets a letter: “I didn’t do it.” She starts to dig, but witnesses are missing, memories have faded, and almost no one wants to talk. Conviction examines the power and cost of community, loyalty and denial. Dahl’s debut novel Invisible City was named one of the Best Books of 2014 by The Boston Globe and has been optioned by actress Toni Collette.

DANYA KUKAFKA Girl in Snow

When Lucinda Hayes, a beloved high school student, is found murdered, no one in her sleepy Colorado suburb is untouched—not the boy who loved her too much, the girl who wanted her perfect life, or the officer assigned to investigate. These three indelible characters, Cameron, Jade and Russ, must confront their darkest secrets. Debut novelist Kukafka employs crystalline prose as she explores identity and the razor-sharp line between love and obsession, watching and seeing, memory and truth.

RAYCHEL KUBBY ADLER
Life in Asymmetry: A Hopeful Journey Over the Peaks and Valleys of Genetic Breast Cancer

From the “flatlands” of puberty, across the “boobie mountains” of parenthood, and traversing the “landmines” of genetic breast cancer, Adler illuminates what it means to live with genetic cancer and to be a “previvor.” In this memoir, Adler looks at the interplay of genetics, personal choice, and chance that shapes our lives and asks us to explore the course of actions we might take when offered a unique glimpse into our possible futures.

ALAN ZWEIBEL
For This We Left Egypt?
Co-written with Dave Barry and Adam Mansbach

Has there ever been a Seder without that one guest who asks if the festive meal will last longer than our wandering in the desert? Or, a household that couldn’t use more Jewish humor? Zweibel’s parody of a Haggadah adapts the Passover observance with plenty of humor and a strong dose of irreverence.

An original Saturday Night Live writer, Alan Zweibel has won numerous Emmy Awards for his work in television, which also includes It’s Garry Shandling’s Show, Late Show with David Letterman, and Curb Your Enthusiasm. He collaborated with Billy Crystal on the Tony Award-winning play 700 Sundays, and he won the Thurber Prize for his novel The Other Shulman.

LESLEY BENNETTS

Last Girl Before Freeway: The Life, Loves, Losses, and Liberation of Joan Rivers

More than a legendary comedian, Joan Rivers was an icon and a role model to millions. She was a fearless pioneer who faced triumphant highs and devastating lows: her husband's suicide, a feud with Johnny Carson, an estrangement from her daughter, a ferocious ambition, many plastic surgeries and massive insecurities. As this juicy and smart biography reveals, Joan Rivers provides lessons for anyone facing barriers, trying to breach long-established boundaries, or periodically seeing America's cultural history as an obstacle.

Bennetts, a former New York Times reporter and Vanity Fair writer, is author of the national bestseller The Feminine Mistake. Like Rivers, Bennetts blazed trails, too: She was the first woman to cover a presidential campaign for The New York Times.

MICHAEL DOBKOWSKI
Facing Death: Confronting Mortality in the Holocaust and Ourselves

This book features essays that explore whether Holocaust survivors and their children have a particular approach to mortality and death, given their Holocaust experiences. It has a unique format in that it includes an internal dialogue among the authors on the issues raised in the book. Dobkowski has an essay in the book and comments on two other essays that deal with the controversy around the Sonderkommando, the Jewish work units in the concentration camps that dealt with the disposal of gas chamber victims.

Dobkowski is a professor of religious studies at Hobart and William Smith Colleges and a scholar of Holocaust studies and anti-Semitism.

DAVID DALIN
Jewish Justices of the Supreme Court: From Brandeis to Kagan

With a historian’s eye and a rabbi’s perspective, Dalin examines the lives, legal careers, and legacies of the eight Jewish Justices of the U.S. Supreme Court: Louis D. Brandeis, Benjamin Cardozo, Felix Frankfurter, Arthur Goldberg, Abe Fortas, and current Justices Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Stephen G. Breyer and Elena Kagan.

Did they encounter anti-Semitism as they navigated the legal profession? What kinds of relationships did they have with the presidents who appointed them? What political debates arose during their nominations?

Dalin, a rabbi and scholar of American Jewish studies, has taught at numerous universities and formerly was a Taube Research Fellow at Stanford. He has written, co-authored and edited 11 books.
